

Appendix K On-line Listings

Many religious groups now provide on-line locators for the benefit of those looking for one of their congregations. Rarely, these include membership or attendance information as well. The Operations Committee preferred to obtain information directly from a religious body, but opted to use these on-line listings when such direct information was unavailable.

Church locations for sixty-eight groups were obtained from such on-line listings. Three groups provided on-line attendance information for each congregation, and four were able to provide membership or adherent numbers. For those without actual adherent counts, membership figures were used to provide adherent estimates by adding an appropriate number to account for children who might be associated with the congregations as well.

Ideally, these locations would have been obtained in 2010, but most were instead gathered at the end of the data collection process. Since this represents over twenty thousand congregations, the Operations Committee had hoped to receive the information from other sources. The month of data collection is shown in the accompanying table.

The discrepancy between web lists and denominational reports has been covered for three of these groups in Appendix C. The remaining groups may have more than 1.4 million members, based on figures reported in published reports or on-line. Their combined reported congregation count of 14,913 is about 11% more than the on-line listing of 13,385.
